Prof. Arlene Holmes-Henderson (Durham University)

Classics in schools: past, present and future

Wednesday 13 December 2023 – 3.30pm (UK time)

Abstract:

In this talk, Arlene Holmes-Henderson will provide an overview of the learning and teaching of Classics in pre-university settings. Covering a range of geographical contexts since FIEC's foundation to the present day, she will chart the peaks and troughs of educational policy support for classical subjects and will share recent findings from European comparative 'big data' projects. Tracing the (limited) history of Classics education as a sub-field of research in its own right, Arlene will sketch the current landscape of pedagogical research and training, before conjecturing what the future might hold for teachers and learners of Classics.
